

Donna Lindley Named Inaugural Certified Professional Organizer® (CPO®)

Rochester Hills, MI—Donna Lindley has just earned the prestigious designation of Certified Professional Organizer® (CPO®) from the Board of Certification for Professional Organizers (BCPOSM). She is a member of the Inaugural Class of Certified Professional Organizers and is recognized on both the BCPOSM and National Association of Professional Organizers (NAPO) Web sites. Out of more than 3500 NAPO members nationwide, Lindley was one of approximately 200 professional organizers to earn this designation and is one of only two certified organizers in Michigan.

“The certification program for professional organizers acknowledges the importance and value of standards in our industry. The CPO® designation is a formal acknowledgment of my dedication to the professional organizing industry. I wanted to display my ongoing commitment to personal development and education, contribute to strengthening our profession, and demonstrate that I am on the cutting edge of our industry” says Lindley, CPO®.

“I congratulate Donna Lindley on her initiative in being among the first to sit for the CPO® exam. Taking the CPO® exam demonstrates her commitment to the profession,” says NAPO President Standolyn Robertson, CPO®.

Donna Lindley will be honored at NAPO’s 20th Annual Conference in Reno, NV in April 2008.
